

Dear Friends and Family

Giving birth to a new church is always a great challenge, especially in large cities. But at the same time the challenge becomes a unique opportunity to experience the power and supernatural direction of God. We are amazed of how much God has done for us as we build new relationships with all kinds of people, believers, atheist, old, young, Jewish, Argentineans, rich and poor. This has been a time of going deeper in our experience of God's grace. We can say that this year has been "life at its fullest".

The first week in October we had a cultural event where Burk Parson (The Editor of Table Talk from Ligonier Ministries) gave a talk about the meaning of love in a postmodern world. We had a great attendance even with a huge storm that flooded parts of the city. In the same event we presented some paintings by Gian Samara, a Dutch man who lives in Condesa-Roma. We have become good friends with him, even when he is a confessed anti Christian. We also could tell that he was very moved by our interest and desire to present his artwork.

One of our newest friends is Eduardo. He came to our service two weeks ago, invited by a couple that we have met last year. He told us that it was his first time at a non Roman Catholic Church and that he felt welcomed at our home. He and his wife came back for our Friday small group, and told us again how much he appreciates the way in which we engage in a dialogue with people who are not sure about their faith. He said also that we have broken some stereotypes he had about Christian people. Can we ask for more?

Sergio García and Friends from Church

Yesterday we had our third monthly service, and it was a great time of communion and worship. Sergio García, who is a member of our team, preached on Joshua chapter 2 about Rahab, and did a wonderful job explaining God's grace and mercy.

We want to thank you for your commitment to pray for us. You are a great encouragement and want to let you know how much we love serving alongside with you for the advance of Christ's Kingdom.

Please Pray for:

A place where we can meet in January. During the next weeks we will be hunting again for buildings and office space that we can rent.

For our friends who are searching spiritually. That God will confirm their calling and that soon we can have our first group of people who are ready to be baptized.

For our worship team. That we can find the right person to lead this ministry. Sergio Munguia, a young man, could be a great candidate for this.

For our budget for next year. That we can complete what will be needed for 2012.

For our family: Teresa has been a wonderful connection with the community and we hope to keep meeting more people in our neighborhood. Fernanda and Hugo keep growing and have been a great aid for our ministry.

For the next outreach and building community activities:

Nov 12 Extreme Sports and Paintball

Nov 27 Monthly Service

Dec 3 Karaoke and Dinner

Together in the advance of His Kingdom.
